Take a Ride for a "spell"

Make a day of it! Follow the hex signs — whether Samschdaag or Sunndaag (Saturday or Sunday) or any day of the week. Joy ride through acres of ancestry dotted with the distinctive design of the hex signs on Berks County's winding Barn Star Art Tour.

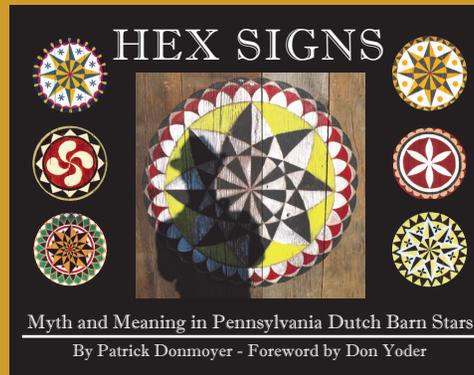

Explore the open-air gallery of our countryside and detour for adventure at nature's main attractions including Crystal Cave, Blue Rocks Family Camp-ground, Hawk Mountain Sanctuary, and others. If the weather agrees, put your windows down and engage all your senses as landmarks give way to landscapes. From fertile fields and front-porch swings, to swift creeks, shade trees, and laundry flapping in the breeze, brake here and there to rest and reflect. The quiet charm and dignity of the landscape is symbolic of the people whose farmsteads founded communities, whose art and idealism shaped a culture, and whose progress and traditions wove the very fabric of Pennsylvania's Americana Region itself. Enjoy the ride!

BARN STAR ART TOUR

Take a Ride for a spell & tickle your fancy!

Enjoy a self-guided tour through northern
Berks County
& discover the unique American folk art known as

Barn Stars & Hex Signs!

PENNSYLVANIA'S
AMERICANA
REGION
Great stuff happens here!

Take a Ride
and tickle your “fancy”
as you chart a course through the cultural heritage of Pennsylvania’s Americana Region...

Tucked deep in the heart of Berks County’s farm country, you’ll discover barn stars—or “hex signs”—a uniquely American art form and the best-known symbol of the Pennsylvania Dutch.
These simple star patterns trace their lineage to the area’s German ancestors.
Along with their barns, the Pennsylvania Dutch—or Pennsylvania Germans—
similarly adorned blanket
chest, quilts, tombstones,
and more with this “fancy”
folk art, which can still be found in many shops and scenes along the way.
Though Berks County
claims bragging rights to the origin of this distinctive art form, its roots are actually as deep as the artistry and symbolism of medieval Europe. Inaccurately dubbed superstitious “hexafoos” by Wallace Nutting in his 1924 book “Pennsylvania, the Beautiful,” the misnomer took hold and eventually became “hex sign.”

Eric Claypoole, 2017

 Just for nice...

The region’s “Plain” people, the Amish and Mennonites, are sometimes thought to be the source of the barn stars — not so, as their religion strictly prohibits such “fancy” ornamentation.
The origin of the hex sign is best explained by the barn star artist
Milton Hill (1887-1972) of Berks County who, when asked why he decorated his barn, replied, “Oh, just for nice, I guess.” Barn stars are simply about pride, heritage, and tradition—and, admittedly, a little showing off. Why else would the stars be placed facing the road
than to best attract the admiring gaze of neighbors and passersby.

Milton Hill ca. 1950

The quiet charm
and dignity
of the landscape
is symbolic
of the people
whose farmsteads
founded these historic communities.

Get lost in history...

The birth of the hex sign was long believed to be the mid-1800s when the affordability of paint gave a green light to farmers' creative sides; however, new research suggests hex signs existed even earlier. Historians have discovered four foot wooden stars set into stone wall on the gable ends of barns as far back as the late 1700s. In a not-so-distant past, barn stars saturated the rural landscape of southeastern Pennsylvania, but only a fraction have survived to the present time. It is no wonder those remaining today are protected and celebrated not only as Berks County treasures but as American treasures as well.

Interpreting barn star and hex sign art...

In the 1950s, with the rise of regional tourism, the art form changed from the strictly geometric designs found on barns to include other folk art motifs such as hearts, flowers, and birds which were painted on commercial sign board. It also became popular to attribute meanings to the stars painted on barns. Many of these explanations can be traced to the 20th century forms of the art. In fact, many of the design interpretations can be directly linked to folk art painters like Johnny Ott, Jacob Zook, and Johnny Claypoole. Popular or tourist meanings of hex barn art include:

6-pointed Rosette
Good Luck, the flower of life, the Morning Star, 6 Biblical Days of Creation

8-pointed Star
The most popular barn star in Berks County, Sun, Fertility, the Compass rose

12-pointed Star
the 12 Months, or 12 Apostles
Scalloped Border
Tranquility, Smooth Sailing

16-pointed Star
Success, Prosperity, Fertility, the Sun

The Hill Star
Classic pattern by artist Milton Hill, painted "just for nice"

Despite the ambiguity of their meanings, the geometric nature of barn star art is no coincidence. Geometric art is some of humanity's earliest art, and has held a variety of meanings, especially among agrarian folk cultures like the Pennsylvania Dutch. The geometric images of barn stars are celestial, and their symbolism reflects a reverence for the forces of nature and the heavens above. Historically, Pennsylvania Dutch farmers used the farmer's almanac and were attentive to the significance of celestial activity and the progression of the year. This idea of cosmic order is central to Pennsylvania folk belief, and profoundly affected the arts, religion, folk medicine, agricultural process, foodways, and many other important facets of Pennsylvania German life.

The DISTELFINK is the good luck bird of the Pennsylvania Germans and is a stylized version of the finch. The finch eats thistle seed and uses thistle down for its nest. The Pennsylvania Dutch language word "distelfink" means "thistle-finch." Since the 1950s, the distelfink has become one of the most popular commercially produced hex sign designs, but it was not originally found on historic barns. Instead, it was formerly found on historic folk art, such as baptismal certificates, redware, and tinware.
